The Honorable Tina Smith

Dear Senators Grassley and Smith:

We, the undersigned groups, write today to thank you for introducing the Healthy Dog Importation Act, which addresses the current gaps in oversight and prioritizes the prevention of disease introduction from imported dogs that threatens both animal and public health. These gaps were highlighted by recent actions by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) to ban imports of dogs from 113 countries and by USDA to add requirements for dogs arriving from countries affected by African Swine Fever. Unfortunately, even with these temporary emergency regulations to protect U.S. human and animal health, more than 90 percent of imported dogs enter the country with minimal oversight by the U.S. government.

In the absence of proper health requirements, imported dogs have been responsible for the introduction and transmission of diseases and pests into the U.S., including rabies, canine influenza, leptospirosis, melioidosis, onchocerosis and screwworm. There is also a growing concern amongst the producer groups that imported dogs and even their crates and bedding could transfer a foreign animal disease that will devastate the U.S. livestock industry.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 6 out of every 10 known human infectious diseases, including 75 percent of new diseases discovered in the last decade, are zoonotic in origin. Despite this, the U.S. lacks even the most basic health requirements such as proper veterinary care prior to transporting a canine, appropriate identification and vaccination of dogs before arrival in the U.S., and strong coordination between the federal agencies that oversee animal and public health. Our system falls far short of those of other developed countries, who have stringent requirements for the movement of and importation of all animals.

We thank you for the Healthy Dog Importation Act, which addresses the current gaps in oversight and prioritizes the prevention of disease introduction from imported dogs that threatens both animal and public health. We look forward to working with you to ensure this bipartisan bill is enacted as a standalone bill or part of the 2023 Farm Bill.

Sincerely,
