Christy Goldsmith Romero
Special Inspector General,
Office of the Special Inspector General
For the Troubled Asset Relief Program
1801 L Street, NW
Washington, D.C. 20220

Dear Ms. Goldsmith Romero:

If confirmed as Commissioner of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (“CFTC”), you will be responsible for overseeing the agency’s highly successful whistleblower program.¹ The continued success of the program must remain a high priority for every Commissioner, especially during the next few months when changes to the program must be made by Congress to ensure its continued viability. It is important for Congress to know how you will oversee and support the program should you be confirmed.

In 2010, Congress established the CFTC’s whistleblower program to collect fines and reward whistleblowers for their disclosures.² The whistleblower fund is also used to finance operating expenses and educational initiatives associated with the whistleblower office.³ As of April 2021, the CFTC has granted whistleblower awards associated with enforcement actions that have resulted in monetary sanctions totaling more than $1 billion.⁴ During FY 2020 alone, the ² The CFTC’s Whistleblower Program was established under the Dodd Frank Act. See Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform Consumer Protection Act, Pub. L. No. 111-203, § 748, 124 Stat. 1739 (2010) (codified at 7 U.S.C. § 26 (2018)); Whistleblower Awards Process, 82 Fed. Reg. 24,487 (May 30, 2017); Whistleblower Incentives & Protection, 76 Fed. As Acting Director of Enforcement Vincent McGonagle notes, “This milestone illustrates that the CFTC’s Whistleblower Program has had a tremendous impact on increasing our enforcement efforts in its short history.” Id.

CFTC granted 16 applications for whistleblower awards, totaling approximately $20 million.⁵ The whistleblower program continues to serve as a vital part of the CFTC's broader enforcement efforts.⁶

Because of its great success, the whistleblower fund is at risk of being depleted.⁷ The increasing size and quantity of fines arising from successful whistleblower disclosures have led to larger reward disbursements.⁸ Current law requires that the whistleblower fund be capped at $100 million, and any fines collected past the cap are remitted to the Treasury's general fund.⁹ The disbursement of larger rewards from a capped fund poses an impending threat to the CFTC whistleblower program's ability to function.

Recently, I introduced, and Congress passed, the CFTC Fund Management Act which will prevent the CFTC office from shutting down in the event that the fund used to pay whistleblowers is depleted.¹⁰ The law established a separate account at the U.S. Treasury to house funds utilized for operating and programming expenses, ensuring that the CFTC whistleblower office will continue to function even when awards exceed the whistleblower fund's balance at the time of distribution.¹¹ However, these changes are temporary, and we need to work together to reach a permanent solution.

The CFTC whistleblower program has been highly successful and if confirmed, you'd be responsible for ensuring its continued success. To help Congress understand how you plan to oversee the CFTC whistleblower program please answer the following questions no later than October 19, 2021:

1. In 2019, you issued a statement announcing the launch of an "intelligence-based process," called the Financial Institution Crimes & Fine Database, which "identifies crimes

⁷ As of September 2020, the CFTC's annual report to Congress indicated that the whistleblower fund's balance was approximately $117 million. On May 11, 2021, the Wall Street Journal reported that the CFTC whistleblower program may face some challenges due to a recommended award of $100 million to a whistleblower who presented information about potential violations at Deutsche Bank. proactively without waiting for bank self-reporting, whistleblower tips or regulator referrals.”¹² Do you believe that whistleblowers are an essential asset in identifying and combatting instances of fraud?

2. If confirmed as Commissioner of the CFTC, will you commit to provide the necessary resources to the CFTC whistleblower program, and ensure that whistleblowers receive their awards in a timely manner?
3. Will you work with Congress to identify ways to strengthen the CFTC whistleblower program?
4. Will you support a long-term solution to restoring the whistleblower fund and maintaining the program, such as increasing the cap of the whistleblower fund and allowing the office to use general funds?
5. The larger the monetary award, the more likely a whistleblower is to come forward. While the CFTC is statutorily limited to providing awards between 10%-30%, some whistleblower groups are concerned that an attempt may be made in the future to arbitrarily reduce the size of awards that are perceived as “too large.” Do you agree that whistleblower awards should never be reduced in size simply because they are large?
6. Do you believe that whistleblowers provide a benefit to the workforce and society as a whole?

Should you have any questions please contact Dario Camacho of my Judiciary Committee staff at (202) 224-4515. Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Sincerely,
